IRO MRT Area Preparation

Kranjska Gora (SI), 08.04. – 10.04.2022

Information

The participants get an introduction to the IRO MRT Area Guidelines as well as to the IRO MRT FL Score Sheet. They learn where the priorities are set at the IRO MRT FL and what thus needs to be kept in mind. One part is the correct handling of the GPS device, which is dealt with both theoretically and practically. An IRO Veterinarian explains the basics of First Aid for the dogs, which are then also practically trained.

During the search work, the teams should show their current level. At the end of every search, each team receives extensive feedback on its performance in order to support their preparation for the IRO MRT FL. At the end of the Module, there will be a general feedback round, summing up the most important points of every worksite/search work, which should constitute a further input for training. Additionally, the Classifiers will share their personal opinion with every team as to whether the team's current level of training is sufficient to participate in the IRO MRT FL.

Further important information

- » Please be prepared that at the beginning of April, temperatures could be very low in the area (possibly snow or rain). Therefore, we strongly recommend ensuring to bring sufficiently warm equipment for both humans and dogs.
- » Upon consultation with the IRO Office, participants are allowed to bring helpers/observers. They can only act as helpers/observers if they are duly registered and their participation is confirmed by the IRO Office. Helpers/observers may act as hiding persons and watch the practical parts of the training, however, they are not allowed in the theoretical and feedback lectures. The IRO reserves its right to limit the number of helpers/observers if needed.
